VEGETABLE EXHIBITING GUIDE

When evaluating your vegetable exhibit at the fair, the judge will consider the following elements: quality, condition, uniformity, trueness to type, and conformity to rules. It is good to keep this in mind when selecting your exhibits.

Quality

Vegetables should be at peak market or table maturity. Choose specimens you would select for eating rather than the largest ones in your garden. The vegetable show is not a size contest, nor do you want to choose specimens that are too immature or overripe. One exception to this rule is tomatoes, which are perfectly fine to enter when they are green. Most herbs are past peak when they have flowered, so it is better to select stems that have healthy leaves but no flowers.

Condition

Your exhibits should be clean, have no cuts or bruises, and be free of insect damage and disease. Wiping with a soft cloth is usually all that is necessary for cleaning exhibits.

Uniformity

All specimens composing a single entry should be as similar as possible in size, shape, maturity, and color. For example, do not mix red and green tomatoes even though they are the same variety.

Trueness to Type

Each exhibit will be judged against the standard for that type of vegetable. For example, sweet peppers and hot peppers have different characteristics. Your exhibit should match the ideal characteristics of its variety.

Conformity to Rules

Be familiar with and pay attention to the rules and the criteria for the classes you are entering. Be sure to include the correct number of specimens for each exhibit as having too few or too many specimens will result in disqualification. Don't forget to include the variety name on the entry form.
